C. SCHOOL COUNSELOR DIRECTORS/

Competence

Competence refers to the ability of a professional to perform their duties effectively and ethically. It involves a combination of knowledge, skills, and experience. Professionals must stay current in their field and seek opportunities for growth and development.

Confidentiality

Confidentiality is the obligation of a professional to keep information shared with them in confidence. This is a cornerstone of trust in many professions, including healthcare, law, and counseling. Breaching confidentiality can have serious consequences for both the professional and the client.

Conflict of Interest

A conflict of interest arises when a professional's personal interests or loyalties interfere with their professional duties. It is essential to identify potential conflicts and disclose them to the appropriate parties to ensure transparency and maintain the integrity of the profession.

Consent

Consent is the voluntary agreement of a client or patient to undergo a procedure or receive services. It must be informed, meaning the individual understands the risks, benefits, and alternatives. Obtaining proper consent is a legal and ethical requirement.

Consultation

Consultation involves seeking advice or input from other professionals or experts in a specific field. This collaborative approach can lead to better outcomes and more comprehensive care. It is a key component of interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary practice.

Conventional Parameters

Conventional parameters refer to the established standards and norms within a profession. These parameters guide professional behavior and ensure consistency and quality of service. They are often based on long-standing traditions and best practices.

Cultural Sensitivity

Cultural sensitivity is the ability to understand and respect the differences in culture, beliefs, and values among individuals. It is crucial for providing effective and equitable care in a diverse society. Professionals should strive to be culturally competent and adapt their practice to meet the needs of all clients.
